

Erin Stahlecker

Age: 32 Type of Cancer: Breast Cancer

Erin has been surviving breast cancer since October of last year. "Treatment is the hardest thing I've ever done," says Erin, "but I'm getting through it with the support of my family."

Erin also tapped into resources in the American Cancer Society. She received support from the American Cancer Society Patient Navigator, as well as information, transportation assistance, and two beautiful wigs. Erin's advice for other patients? "Keep a positive attitude, but also remember that it's okay to cry."

The American Cancer Society presents: "Snapshot of Survival"

Photo sponsored by: Avera Cancer Institute, Photography by: Jael Trieb, Brookings