

Having been a survivor since 1960, Delores has managed to live a strong and healthy life. "I believe that you should put everything in God's hand and He will see you through it," she said. Crediting family and friends for support, Delores knew as a young mother being diagnosed what to focus on. "With a young child at home, you don't really have time to worry about yourself." Today, she enjoys participating in the Avera Race with her daughter and granddaughter, who are also fellow survivors.
