

Joni Reiffenberger takes things one day at a time and believes being surrounded by positive people and thinking positive thoughts has helped her deal with the diagnosis.

"It makes them feel good to be able to help," she said of her family and friends, whom she credits in caring for her spirit. With her husband, Ray, and two daughters, Joni also commends the various cancer programs that have evolved from Avera Race funds and is particularly interested in the development of the survivorship programs.
