

Kelli Timmer always tried to keep a positive attitude during her treatments and looked to her supportive husband and three children for physical and emotional support. "My mom, who is also a survivor, really helped me through this difficult time," she said. Kelli works at Avera McKennan Hospital & University Health Center and credits her team of physicians for her special care. "I think the Avera Race Against Breast Cancer represents so many women who have gone through breast cancer—it's like we're our own family."
