

Beth Babb relied on the help of others to gain strength to heal. "When you're fighting a battle, there can never be just one hero, it takes an army of heroes," she said in regard to the team of professionals, friends, co-workers, students, family members and even acquaintances who reached out and upheld her during her fight with cancer. Finding solace in reading, Beth feels her life has been touched forever. With her husband and family, Beth survives thanks to the supportive care and healing ministry from others.
