

Sue Boe

Sue credits the “little things” in life as making some of the biggest differences when dealing with her breast cancer diagnosis. From reading People magazine during chemo to the simple phone calls from friends, Sue knows she has a lot of heroes in her life. “I felt at peace during treatment because I knew people were praying for me. It was amazing,” she adds. Besides spending time with her family and dog, Sue enjoys participating in the Race because “it’s such a wonderful opportunity to see everyone come together for a great cause.”
