SCIENCE AND SERVICE NEWS UPDATES

FOR MINOR DEPRESSION, NO BENEFIT OVER PLACEBO FROM ST. JOHN'S WORT, CITALOPRAM

A study funded by the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) and the National Center for Complementary and Alternative Medicine shows that an extract of the herb St. John's Wort and a standard antidepressant medication both failed to outdo a placebo in relieving symptoms of minor depression in a clinical trial comparing the three. The results of this study, consistent with earlier research, do not support the use of medications for mild depression.

SWITCHING ANTIPSYCHOTICS MAY REDUCE METABOLIC RISKS

Patients experiencing cardiovascular or metabolic side effects while taking an antipsychotic medication may fare better if they switch to a different medication provided they are closely monitored, according to an NIMH-funded study. The study was published online ahead of print July 18, 2011, in the American Journal of Psychiatry.

NEW NATIONAL REPORT SHOWS MANY DIFFERENCES IN THE TYPES AND LEVELS OF SUBSTANCE USE AND MENTAL ILLNESS PROBLEMS EXPERIENCED AMONG THE STATES

A new report developed by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) based on the combined 2008 and 2009 National Survey on Drug Use and Health (NSDUH) provides state public health authorities and service providers with information on the scope and nature of behavioral health issues affecting their states. The report features state-by-state analyses of a wide range of behavioral health issues and reveals that despite some wide variations among the states in the types and levels of problems they confront, every state must deal with these issues. For example, among those aged 12 and older, Iowa had less than half the current illicit drug use rate of Alaska (5.3-percent versus 13.5-percent) yet Iowa also was among the top 10 states with the highest levels of people age 12 and older currently participating in binge drinking (28.6-percent).

NEW GUIDE FOR PROVIDING WOMEN VETERANS EXPERIENCING HOMELESSNESS WITH TRAUMA-INFORMED CARE

The U.S. Department of Labor released a new online publication, Trauma-Informed Care for Women Veterans Experiencing Homelessness: A Guide for Service Providers. This guide explains the unique experiences and needs of women veterans, and provides organizational self-assessment tools to aid service providers, such as social workers and community service organizations, that assist this population. The guide is the result of nationwide listening sessions with women veterans and services providers about the challenges of homelessness, helping women veterans find jobs and successfully reintegrate into civilian life, and development of quality resources for community-based organizations that serve women veterans.

MEETING SUMMARY: SEX DIFFERENCES IN BRAIN, BEHAVIOR, MENTAL HEALTH, AND MENTAL DISORDERS

NIMH convened a workshop to discuss recent findings and gaps within the study of sex differences in the brain. At this workshop, participants focused on research directed at understanding the mechanisms by which sex differences in affect, cognition, and social behavior arise. Invitees included basic and translational neuroscientists studying animals and humans, with expertise in a variety of methodologies from molecular neuroscience to functional neuroimaging. Primary discussion included how each person's work could inform the others', opportunities to develop collaborations, and ideas for how NIMH could optimize progress across the interrelated topics. <http://www.nimh.nih.gov/research-funding/scientific-meetings/2011/sex-differences-in-brain-behavior-mental-health-and-mental-disorders/index.shtml>

Eating disorders (EDs), which cause serious health problems and can be fatal, frequently co-occur with SUDs. Few programs provide integrated treatment for both EDs and SUDs, and no research exists on the best ways to do so.

CLINICAL TRIAL PARTICIPATION NEWS

NATIONWIDE RECRUITMENT: IDENTIFICATION OF CHARACTERISTICS ASSOCIATED WITH SYMPTOM REMISSION IN AUTISM—A PEDIATRIC STUDY

The NIMH Intramural Research Program is recruiting children and adolescents (ages 7-17) who, since being diagnosed with autism, have made significant improvements such that they no longer meet criteria for a diagnosis of autism. This study is also recruiting children who continue to meet criteria for autism, as well as typically developing children. The goal of the study is to better understand how children who make remarkable improvement may differ from children who continue to meet criteria for autism.

The study involves several inpatient and outpatient visits to Bethesda, MD, that may occur over a few days or several weeks. The study involves an autism diagnostic evaluation as well as a thorough neuropsychological and medical evaluation. A summary of all clinically relevant study findings, including results of the neuropsychological exam, will be provided. There is no cost to participate and families are compensated for their time. Travel assistance and lodging may be provided.

For further information please call the study coordinator at 301-435-7962 (TTY 866-411-1010), or email autismoutcomestudy@mail.nih.gov

REQUEST FOR INFORMATION TO SOLICIT INPUT ON THE FEASIBILITY, SCOPE, AND DESIGN OF A STATE HEALTH POLICY DATABASE

The National Institutes of Health Common Fund Health Economics Program is seeking input about developing a State Health Policy Database (SHPD) to support scientific research on key research questions in health economics and to facilitate applied health economics research on issues relating to health care reform. The SHPD is envisioned as a research tool that will document state-level policies in a manner that facilitates valid comparisons across states and over time. This Request for Information seeks to identify specific policy areas for inclusion in the SHPD by identifying key research questions that could be addressed using policy information in particular areas, viable research designs that will allow those questions to be answered, and additional data that are required to implement those research designs. In addition, the Health Economics Program seeks input on general issues relating to the feasibility, scope, and design of such a SHPD. Responses will be accepted through August 26, 2011. <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-RM-11-019.html>
